“ Momma, It’s your oldest grandchild (and favorite 😊). What a ride! You were the first one to spoil me well into adulthood. The one who introduced me to Jesus and bringing me to church every Sunday. We had disagreements, and a lot of laughs along the way. From standing under you while you taught me how to make a cake, to having you press my hair so straight while telling me you didn’t burn me, that it was just the heat! Lol...To our long talks and even gossip about celebrities. Your love for politics and our talks about various candidates over the years. From coming over your house to watch President Obama’s inauguration. What a beautiful ride it has been. The Lord blessed you with long life...101 years! You could not have imagined living this long in a million years! I can hear you laughing about that. But I am thankful that you knew the Lord and it brings me peace to know that you are now home ready for your eternal rest. While my conversations with you have ceased in the natural, I’ll still be talking to you in the spirit. May the Lord bless you with His sweet peace. Until we meet again. Love Leslie
