“ Kay,

I'm so sorry for your lost cousin! I remember the first time I met Stanley in KC. Although we were the same age I admire how he was working towards professional goals which made me think about my future goals. Whenever I seen Stanley he was smiling and I will miss seeing him at family gatherings.

*Love you cuz!

“ Kay,

I am deeply sorry for the loss of your soulmate. I know you loved him and he loved you dearly. From being childhood friends to classmates to being a bridesmaid in your's and Stanley's wedding. You are still my beloved friend. There's no words I can say to make you feel better, but please know this, God's got you and your family. May God continue to bless you and keep you close.

Love you, from Tracy and family

“ From the first time I met you Stanley in McCrory, AR. I could feel your warm spirit. I use to play with teddy bears a lot and I can say that if teddy bears were real people Stanley you would have been the first one I met. Always calm, smiling, and gentle. So happy I was able to meet you and also call you Family. In this harsh world that's one thing I can take from you to be with me.....the calmness you carry the smiles you give even when it's uneasy. You will be surely missed by many but much Loved Thank You for your Life.

“ I was about 13 years old when my cousin was born. He had a good spirit even as a little boy. We had some good times at home the of Uncle Joe and Aunt Sarah. Seeing him growing up and becoming a wonderful man who loved his family. He was pleasant to be around. He will be missed.

“ A Tribute to Stanley Britney

Some people lead with charisma; others lead with quiet strength. Stanley Britney was the latter—a man of few words, but of deep conviction. As the beloved husband of my dear friend Karen, Stanley was a steady presence, a devoted partner, and a quiet force behind a beautiful life they built together.

Raising two boys, Stanley modeled what male leadership looks like. He demonstrated that strength isn't just about dominance—it's about responsibility, consistency, and love.

Stanley's legacy lives on in the character of his sons, in the warmth of Karen's memories, and in the countless lives he touched simply by being himself.

We loved him and we love you all! Always and Forever,

“ There are no words to express the loss we are all feeling. There is comfort in knowing that he is in no pain and is in the loving arms of our Lord and Savior. I love and miss Stanley dearly and have all the wonderful memories to reflect on growing up as kids and taking vacations as adults. To Kay and his beautiful family, you are in my heart.

“ Stanley was always considered a brother instead of a cousin., which makes this so hard for me. Growing up through the years is the most treasureable memories. I'm going to miss him so much. Love you Stanley from your cousin Judith

You are in our thoughts and prayers. Stanley was a wonderful man. Tim and I were just talking about him last week. Tim had his high school football film transferred which brought lots of high school memories. With love, Tim and Dee Dee Cain.

“ May the Holy Comforter embrace Kay, Joseph, Blake, and our entire family with peace, strength, and tender grace as we celebrate the beautiful life, love, and memories we shared with Stanley.

Take comfort in knowing that Jesus has prepared a special place for him, and that God has left the stars shining brightly—like porch lights—to guide Stanley safely to his Heavenly Home.

*With all our love,
